THOUGHT and COMMENT

STREET CARS

"While citizens' committees and improvement clubs all over Oakland are carrying on a constant agitation for bus instead of street car service, the Key System Transit company, owner of the street car service in the East Bay, has taken on itself the first step in what may develop into discarding of the street car for uses of the bus. The company has filed in the Oakland and Berkeley city councils and with the State Railroad commission plans for a parallel bus-street car service on Telegraph avenue to improve communication via that artery between Oakland and Berkeley.

"The proposed service calls for a paralleling of bus and street car lines as far as Alcatraz avenue with the bus taking from the street cars the burden of excess stops in this stretch of transit. The buses would stop at the present street car stops between Alcatraz avenue and Tenth street and Broadway in Oakland. The street cars would run on an express plan, stopping at only ten points between Alcatraz avenue and Seventeenth street, running either north or south. (From the Oakland section of the San Francisco Chronicle, May 1, 1926.)

There's a whole wad of information in those two paragraphs as we see them. The RECORD HERALD has been insistent in its demands that the bus be substituted for the street car in this city. The above action on the part of the street car company is a frank admission that they consider the bus more adequate to handle the traffic, especially in view of the fact that they plan to parallel their own line.

Another bugaboo which has been shouted against the bus seems to have filtered through a mind or two—namely that the constant starting and stopping of a bus is more expensive than the street car. It has been conclusively proven in the east that the bus is superior to the electric rail line street car in every respect: safer, more economical in operation—in fact the bus represents the health of perfection in street transportation at the present time.

We will admit that the street car company has an enormous investment in rolling stock and rail lines as well as other equipment—however, it might be an economic waste to scrap all of this equipment—however the street car company which seems to realize the passing of the street car is taking a step in the proper direction by putting on buses instead of attempting to handle the traffic with the old antiquated street cars.

Again we predict that the time is not far distant when Richmond as well as every other city in the East Bay will no longer be forced to contend with the inadequate and antiquated street car system.

Seattle Police Destroy Liquor

(By Universal Service)
SEATTLE, Wash., May 1.—County and city officials were on record here today as being in favor of bigger and better "booze parties." This pronouncement came as the aftermath of a "party" staged on the shores of Lake Union, when, with much ado, a large quantity of confiscated liquor was destroyed while cameras clicked and strong men wept.

Officers "in on the kill" stated that such affairs should be surrounded with considerable ceremony, inasmuch as a certain amount of pomp would tend to enlist the interest and co-operation of the public in the fight to enforce prohibition.

Future parties of this sort will be given the widest publicity, it was stated, and the public, if it is so inclined, may have the opportunity to mingle its tears with the beverages that will never caress a tongue.

He established himself in his profession in Iowa. Later, being attracted by the climate of California and seeking greater opportunities, he came to California in 1897. He opened an office in Lake county and for many years practiced his profession in that county. He then came to San Jose where through his high professional regard and his efficiency he was appointed city health officer. That city he served well. He learned of Richmond and the wonderful progress made by this city. Dr. Fraser decided to come to Richmond which community he has aided in building. He has gained a large practice and he has specialized in rectal and chronic diseases and kept up his studies in medical research. His office at the present time is in the Pillow Building, 707 Macdonald avenue. Notwithstanding his successful and large practice, he has found time and has taken a great deal of interest in the progress of Richmond.

He is prominent in Masonic circles particularly in the Knights Templar, of which fraternity he is the recorder of the Richmond Commandery. He has held this position since the time the commandery was first organized in Richmond. He was also instrumental in the organization of the Masonic Harbor lodge No. 503. He is a prominent Elk.

THREE DROWN DURING MAY DAY PICNIC

Two Youths Die in Effort to Save Third Companion Swept From Rock While Fishing

(By Universal Service)
SANTA ROSA, May 1.—Tragedy stalked into the midst of a May Day picnic party at Wright Beach 20 miles west of here, when late this afternoon three San Francisco youths were swept by heavy seas from a rock on which they were fishing and drowned.

The bodies have not been recovered.

Two of the lads perished while heroically attempting to rescue their companion from the sea.

The dead: Jack Davidson, 19, stepson of Timothy Healy, well-known attorney and former newspaperman of San Francisco.

George Boschke, 20.

Teddie Barrett, 21.

Davidson was the first one to be swept off the rock into a wild surge of waves and spray. His companion, Barrett, immediately threw out a pole and, line in an attempt to rescue.

Young Barrett's efforts were fruitless and resulted in himself being swept into the ocean. Boschke, the third youth frantically endeavored to save his companions but his efforts went for naught when a giant comb swept over the rock and hurled him into the waves.

Scores of people along the shore line helplessly watched the tragedy. Fishermen rushed to the scene and immediately began a search for the bodies. Little hope was held however that they would be recovered.

The rock from which the three youths were swept away is known to fishermen as death rock. With today's tragedy included thirteen lives that have been lost off death rock within the last several years. No bodies have ever been recovered.

Death rock is extremely deceptive in its appearance. To the casual observer it seems to be perfectly safe to use as a fishing bank. Close observation will show, however, according to fishermen, that every so often a high comb sweeps entirely over the rock with strength enough to carry off anything or anybody that might be on its surface.

As a result of today's three drownings the suggestion was made that the rock be dynamited to avoid future tragedies.

President Calles left at night for a week-end in the county as did many members of the cabinet but his progress is unknown here as both telephone and telegraph services is suspended.

A great parade of more than 100,000 workers from bank clerks to the lowest laborers attested the strength of the union.

Even the drug stores closed and physicians stopped caring for the sick, although emergency stations were organized. This was the first demonstration of its kind where all the participants went unarmed.

Modern Home is Pictured in "The Best People"

A dazzling success in the world of finance and a dismal failure at rearing a family is the study in contrasts strikingly shown in "The Best People," Sidney Olcott's newest production for Paramount, due at the Richmond Theatre today.

A husband learns that, after he has rolled up his millions, he has entirely overlooked the welfare of his son and daughter, until it is forcefully brought home to him by the daughter falling in love with the family chauffeur and the son with a chorus girl.

The mother of the children is more alarmed about the ensuing disgrace to her than she is over the future welfare of the children. Incidentally, the children, who have come to mock and scorn the authority of the parents, feel that they are able to choose for themselves.

How this tangle is straightened out makes a mighty interesting picture and gives its own answer to the problem "who are the best people?"

Featured in the production are Warner Baxter, as the chauffeur; Esther Ralston, the "different" chorus girl; Kathryn Williams, as the mother. In the supporting cast are Edwards Davis, who plays the father; Margaret Morris, the daughter of wealth; Joseph Striker, cast as the son; William Austin, Margaret Livingston and Ernie Adams.

Bernard McConville adapted the story for the screen from the play by David Grey and Avery Hopwood.

Other features on the same program include "Beware," a comedy scream; "Kinograms" world news events.

Diversified Bill Is Showing at the California

A well diversified bill, of five acts of vaudeville, with plenty of kick in it from the initial curtain will be offered at the California Theatre today, in conjunction with the screen feature "Rustling for Cupid," featuring George O'Brien and Anita Stewart.

"A breeze from the West" with Cuba Crutchfield indulging in some acrobatics, roping and comedy chatter is a snappy offering. Crutchfield is well known wherever rope spinners are spoken of and he dispenses a number of new and original feats with the lariat.

"Hokum ala Mode" introduces Wright and Anderson, a bright singing couple with a bent for comedy. Miss Anderson is the possessor of a pure baritone voice and a range of six octaves. Their specially written conversation is replete with bright repartee.

"Atta Girl Mom" is the title of the act presented by The Three Bernard Sisters. Singing, dancing and a little comedy in the makeup of their offering with some scotch numbers featured at the opening.

Jim Crowley and Leah Burke in twelve minutes of fun and harmony are billed as the Peerless Southern Singers but it is in the comedy passages that they shine. Crowley is a comedian of the eccentric order and never misses an opportunity of giving his auditors a hearty laugh.

Howe Cook and Co., consists of two athletic young men and a talented young woman in a series of gymnastic and balancing feats together with a novel stunt by Ginger the only dog doing a swing on the slack wire.

Adita Stewart is cast as Sybil Hamilton in "Rustling for Cupid," Fox Films' latest production to reach the screen. George O'Brien has the masculine lead as Brad Blatchford, in this Peter B. Kyne drama of ranch life.

Miss Stewart and O'Brien give the picture a good laugh at the start as they are just across the aisle in a Pullman bound for Sycamore Creek, New Mexico, where she is to teach school, and near which O'Brien's father owns the famous Swastika Ranch.

The porter exchanges his grips and starts the romance, which runs through a lot of heart throbs vicissitudes to an "all's well that ends well" finale.

Others in the cast are Russell Sherman, Herbert Prior, Edith Yorke, Sid Jordan and Frank McGowan, Jr.

Other features on the same program include a Mutt and Jeff cartoon; "Kinograms" world news events; Carl Richard's California Orchestra and Larry Canelo, at the mammoth organ.

Democratic State Central Committee To Meet Saturday

To elect delegates to the State convention, a meeting of the Democratic State Central committee will be held in Richmond next Saturday.

"Why Girls Go Back Home" with Patsy Ruth Miller is a Warner production from this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Marie Downey, innocently involved in scandal by Clifford Dudley, an actor, climbs to stardom because of the notoriety. John, a former sweetheart, writes that he believes in her, wants to marry her. Marie, tasting success, puts him off. For three years she lives, with her chum Sally, a gay life. She invites Clifford to her birthday party and receives herself by "running him ragged" in front of the guests. John, an unannounced visitor, is mistaken for a beggar by the butler.

CHAPTER XI—(Continued)

And now, here he was, and no jackass in livery was going to keep him from a sight of her. Nor could he say she was not at home. He saw the lighted windows and heard the murmurs and shrieks of excited voices with a panting heart. Somewhere in that combined noise was her voice.

The butler, who had run down a flight of steps, half-opened the service door, grabbed John by the arm and pulled him through into a small hall from which the kitchen gave.

"Go into the kitchen, you, if you want something to eat."

"Say—I don't," began John, pulling back his arm viciously. The outside bell rang again, and the butler, muttering, hurried back up the stairs.

"You'll get no money, here," he called back firmly to John.

Non-repeatable words were all that John could think of in answer. It was no good calling them at the butler's back, he stood silently, sick with himself for having got into such a muddle, and half resolved to go back through the service door. But why, when he had come such a way? And now, at least, he was inside her house.

He stood and waited for about five minutes, but it seemed interminable. The door between upstairs and down was half open, and he could hear sounds of laughter and mirth. He climbed the small flight of steps cautiously and inserted himself through the half open door. It opened into the outer lobby and a small waiting room, now hung with men's coats and hats. Opening from the lobby on the other side was a series of closed doors through which John heard the party at its frantic height. Right in front of him rose the gleaming rails of the staircase.

As John stood, undecided, he saw the handle of the living room door turn. As if someone were about to open it. Obeying the impulse of the fugitive, he fled up the shallow stairs and before the living room door had opened, he had gained the top.

The landing, partly hidden from the front door, had low-cushioned window seats on either side of the spring air. Part of the landing had been curtained off to form a tiny alcove. The curtains were drawn about it now. Above the landing, after another small flight of stairs, were ranged closed doors. John took his surroundings in at a glance, for footsteps were coming up the stairs. Perceiving the dimness of a balcony through the French windows of the landing, he stepped through instinctively.

It was a wide balcony, almost like another long, low room, with an awning top, and the sky creeping in at the sides, over the railing of plants which fenced it in. It had been built curiously and specially for a writer who wanted an outdoor workroom, but John did not know this. Another French window led into the curtained alcove. This tiny private space lay in semi-darkness. John could just see two chairs, set as for a tête à tête by the window. He hovered about the second window because it was comparatively dark. The balcony, too, had only the light from the hall and the dim light from the landing.

This part of Marie's house gave John a feeling of peace. There was something rural about it, the rather wispy plot of grass below, a tree rustling its budding branches on a level with his face. He did not guess how much money this ruralness and simplicity cost in New York, so he was not awed as he had been by the sight of the house from the outside, the silk and lace at its windows, the butler, the cars waiting outside, and the silken collars of men's evening coats in the waiting room.

"Oh, but—Clifford!"

He jumped almost audibly and crouched against the darker window of the alcove.

Marie and Clifford had stepped through the other window from the landing, cutting off retreat. They were walking to the rail of the balcony. He strained for a glimpse of Marie's face, but he could only see the green sheen of her dress and hear her voice, soft, but the words clear-cut, carrying, as he did not remember them. An actress' enunciation.

Clifford's voice was just as trenchant. An actor's voice.

"I didn't think you would see me again. I have longed to see you—ever since. But I was afraid—I was afraid you might hate me."

"Perhaps I should," responded Marie's voice with a distinct catch in it. "Oh, why, why did you do that to me?"

"My dear!" Clifford was really working himself into a frenzy of sincerity. "Oh, my dear! If you knew how they kept at me, forced me, threatened me. I would not blame you if you hated me."

"Perhaps I should hate, you," said Marie slowly. "But—"

Clifford caught her hands and bent over her.

"But—I—don't—" finished Marie with a little sob.

John crouched lower into the dark window. He put his hands to his ears with some vague desire not to hear the fatal words, but he could not help hearing.

"But you don't," cried Clifford triumphantly. "You don't!"

"Ah, my dear, you hold my heart in your two little hands—"

He drew her closer. Marie heard a slow murmur up the stairs. If it had not been so dim, and if Clifford had not been so occupied, Clifford might have noticed the glint in her eyes at that. But he was oblivious.

"Oh, my dearest—" he continued. Marie could not help it for the life of her she murmured gravely. "And my heart will be—"

"Fours," went on Clifford, seizing his cue and looking up in his best manner; "yours till the stars and the moon—"

"They concluded together in a soft chorus: 'Are no more!'"

The ghost of a "sh-sh" was audible to Marie's ears, on the lookout for it. But Clifford did not hear. He clasped Marie in his arms with thanksgiving, and, finding her there, was surprised by the onrush of passion that was not schooled or rehearsed. As she met his kisses, John turned and rushed through the other window into the alcove. He stumbled into a chair and, with his head into his hands, gave himself over to misery.

Marie shook herself free suddenly, giving the surprised Dudley a resounding slap on the cheek. "Wait a minute, you sap. You're crushing my dress."

This was the signal. Sally, leading a group which had been hiding on the landing and up the stairs outside the windows, burst in hilariously. And as Clifford whitened, the merry-makers fell upon him, shouting "a heck of congratulations, shrieking mock advice."

"Cliff, don't you ever change that line?"

"Never change the line or the girl, do you, Cliff? Good of Cliff. Faithful of dog!"

The word "dog" brought immediate associations to a blonde, far gone in liquor, who began to yell. "Here, Towser! Here, Towser!" till someone stifled her outcries.

The laughter rose to pandemonium. Clifford was pulled this way and that, while people gasped with mirth at his flustered face. Sally's piercing voice kept up a flow of wise cracks in her best manner. She threw herself against Clifford.

"Here sh-sh-sh the loudest actor," she enunciated with difficulty but in a voice that rose cuttishly above the noise, "that Marie Downey ever had the good fortune to meet."

"Ray! Speech!"

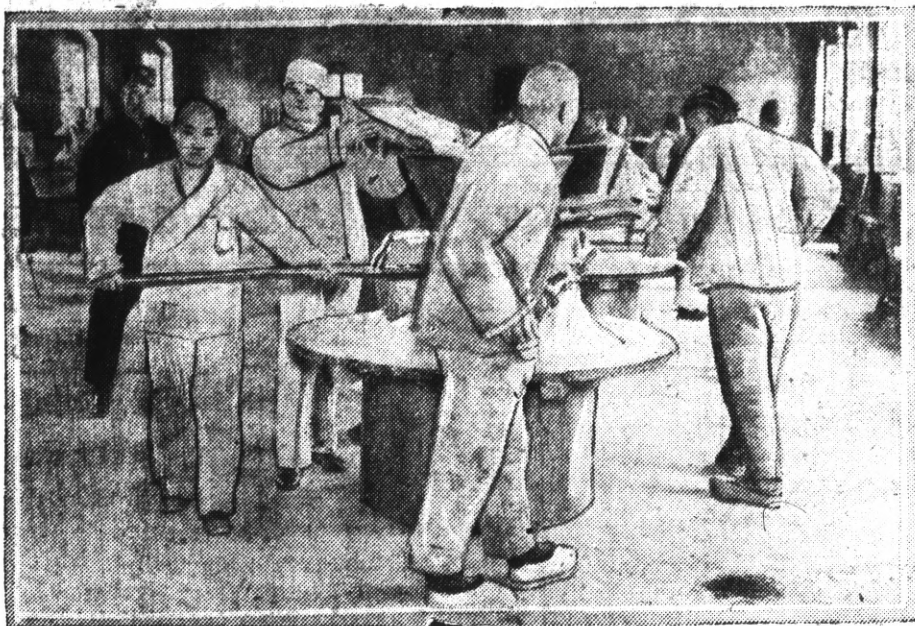

"Ya-ay, Speech!"

"Three-ee-cheeas for the loudest actor Marie Downey evah—"

In spite of herself, Marie sleekened at the sight of Clifford's face through the group, now lost to all reserve, to everything but the sport of kidding. His face flushed and paled by turns, as if it were being slapped at intervals. She avoided hands that were clapping her or the back, that were gliding approvingly about her shoulders and looked about for an escape.

New Model Jail In Peking So Thoroughly Up to Date Prisoners Enjoy Liberty And Have Study Hours

This photograph, just received built at Peking by the Chinese with the idea of proving to the world that Chinese jails are not as unsuitable for housing European defaulters and murderers as has been believed. Other than two Germans, there were only a few Russian prisoners serving long terms for armed robbery and murder. Peking's new jail is light and clean and the prisoners enjoy recreation and study hours.

Music and Musicians

By MME. COBINA WRIGHT
Society's Renowned Singer, and Writer.

(By Universal Service)

NEW YORK, May 1.—Music hath charms to soothe the majestic breast, as well as the savage breast. I am informed by an acquaintance of his that Benito Mussolini, master of Italy, like a famous Roman predecessor is an enthusiastic violinist, and at the end of each day he takes the instrument he used as a boy from its battered case, and plays for hours at a time in an effort to blot out the cares of the day and to forget for a time his incessant battle with his most sinister enemy—ill health. "Dull care is for the moment drowned" in the strains of his own sweet music.

Shakespeare says that he who has not music in his heart is "fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils," but the dictator or as they call him "the Saviour of Italy" cannot be classed in this category. He is not only passionately devoted to music, but is doing all in his power to further it. While his own preference is for the classics of the old masters, he has given every encouragement to the group of young Italian composers now coming to the fore.

The genial Frank Pope records some interesting data on the subject of Fedor Chaliapin and "The Volga Boat Song." Chaliapin was himself a Volga boatman when he was sixteen years of age.

"My parents were very poor," says Chaliapin, "and I was forced to work hard. When I was eight or nine years old I sang in church, and I continued singing until my voice began to change. In my teens I took any work I could get. I was a shoemaker's assistant in the same street where Maxim Gorky was teaching in an underground baker's shop. I worked in a railroad station—I unloaded grain barges on the Volga—Oh it would be perhaps easier for me to tell you what I did not do. I started singing again after a while, and knocked about from one place to another, wherever I could get an engagement, which was not as often as I would have liked. The song of the Volga Boatman was always one of my favorites. It is what I call a Plural song. It came into being as a group song, and has usually been sung by several voices. There is a strong rhythmic undertone to this music, emphasized first by the trudging of the boatmen, and their "To Heave Ho!" the general impression seems to be that this is a sad song. I don't consider it so. In fact I sing it with a certain joy.

In this song, the composer of which is unknown, but which dates back many centuries, the Volga-river is put on a par with "The Blue Danube" or "The Swanee River."

They say that no man is a hero to his valet, but a valet may possess certain secrets that will make him a hero to the world at large, especially when his master happens to be a celebrity.

Upon the recent death of Alexander Sofronoff, Tschikovsky's man Friday, the valet's son presented several valuable manuscripts of the composer's work to the Memorial Museum at Klyn, where Sofronoff lived. Among these were the sketches of the opera "Voyvode," the manuscript of which was destroyed by Tschikovsky. Sofronoff with curious foresight and by some miracle of perception preserved the sketches. It is believed that the opera can be restored from these fragments, thanks to the care of a former servant.

The best dressed woman in the opera will be seen in Chicago this summer. She is Lucreezia Bori, whose beauty of voice and charm of manner are matched by her good taste and artistic understanding in everything she does. She will sing some of her famous roles during the operatic season at Ravinia Park, and upon the termination of her engagement will go abroad for a brief holiday in Barcelona, Spain, where she has her home. Early in the autumn she will return to America for a long concert tour before she returns to the Metropolitan in January.

GENERAL GREENE TAKES COMMAND

Early in December General Nathaniel Greene of Rhode Island was placed in command in the South. He was considered by far the ablest soldier in the Revolution. He had but the shadow of an army, but with it he accomplished wonders. He kept no single force afield, but sent one part of his little army toward the coast to cut Cornwallis' communications. Another he sent southward against the inland posts and settlements where scattered garrisons lay between Cornwallis and Charleston in the south.

Early in January a group of Greene's men, led by Daniel Morgan, a strong, gallant and fearless soldier, gained the battle of Cowpens, South Carolina. Then General Greene, who was master of the game he played, retreated toward Virginia, with Cornwallis following him. At Guilford Court House, which is now Greensborough, North Carolina, Cornwallis beat the Americans, but he found that after the battle the defeated army was a steady and as well in hand as before. So the British withdrew to Wilmington, North Carolina.

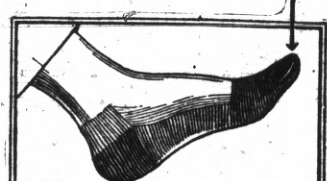

There were many anxious days for both the American and the British soldiers, and a source of worry which crept up again and again was the subject of provisions.

General Cornwallis realized that it was a hazardous thing to take his army southward again, with supplies, through the forests where the American forces were moving, so he determined to move northward and join General Arnold in Virginia. He began his long march of 200 miles.

Meanwhile Greene had suddenly gone back to Camden, South Carolina, and had driven out the British force left under Lord Rawdon. Through the summer he struck the enemy blow after blow and finally, after a battle at Eutaw Spring, which was practically a victory—the remainder of the British fled to Charleston.

General Greene had won back the Carolinas; and he had won them with the help given by Marion, Sumter and Pickens and an army of less than two thousand men. A sure sign of greatness was this accomplishment, and Greene did credit to his teacher, the great George Washington. (Tomorrow: The Crowning Victory of the War.)

George Olsen Takes Over the Studebaker Car Agency for Richmond From W. J. McCarthy

The Richmond Studebaker dealership changed hands yesterday, W. J. McCarthy who has operated here for two years selling his interests to George Olsen, effective at once.

Olsen, the new owner, is well known in this city where he has resided the last twelve years, being engaged in various lines of business and part of the time devoting himself to his farm. Olsen told the RECORD-HERALD yesterday that he sees several years of good business ahead for Richmond, in fact he has strong faith that no section of the country has a greater future than the east bay section and his action in buying the valuable Studebaker agency is based upon this belief. The new owner has arranged to add Ed Hanson of Oakland, an experienced automobile salesman, to his force, Hanson beginning his work with the new organization Monday.

The Studebaker agency is well located at 1235 Macdonald avenue, on the corner of Macdonald and Thirteenth street. Olsen will at once add additional Studebaker models to the line carried on the floor and will be in a position at all times to make deliveries as promptly as the dealers in the larger cities. A servicing plant for repairs, washing and polishing will be maintained at 238 Thirteenth street, a short distance from the main store.

McCarthy who was in the feed business before going into the automobile line announced yesterday that he will probably go back to the old love.

Golett Defendants Are Found Guilty

The jury hearing the Golett oil swindle case in the Superior Court Justice Fred V. Wood's court in Oakland late Friday night returned a verdict of guilty against the three persons charged with grand larceny in connection with the selling of stock in the alleged oil company. Edwin F. Reeves and Franklin P. Davis were found guilty on twelve counts of grand larceny and violation of the state corporation securities act and Mrs. Peggy Reeves, wife of one of the defendants, was found guilty on three counts of grand larceny and acquitted of other charges.

Three trials were held before a jury returned a verdict. In the two former trials, the juries failed to reach an agreement and were discharged.

James Gough, alleged brains of the swindle, pleaded guilty to the charge of violating the state securities act and was sentenced to San Quentin, C. E. Peacock, another defendant, pleaded guilty before the second trial and was fined $1,500 on the charge of violating the corporation securities act.

A fund to maintain a chair in labor problems at Colorado college, Colorado Springs, has been established by the Federated Trades Council.

Children's Bank Is Conducted at Mooseheart, Ill.

MOOSEHEART, Ill., May 1.—The only children's bank, conducted exclusively for children is operated here.

This children's bank at this time has deposits totalling $12,000 and these deposits are guaranteed by the assets of the Loyal Order of Moose, which total $35,000,000,000.

Everyone of the 1300 children here is a depositor in the bank. This unique bank is operated like any national bank, yet it has no president, directors or officers. All phases of banking are carried on, including all kinds of deposits, and the making of loans. The bank is a part of the school curriculum, so that the children will have gained a thorough knowledge of how to deal with banks, for their benefit after they have completed their school career.

Loans of money are made to the older children, who wish to buy articles which are called luxuries. All necessities of life are provided for the Mooseheart children, yet bicycles, roller skates and the like are listed as luxuries and children wishing for them may get them with their own money. If their bank account would not warrant making the expenditure they are permitted to make a loan, providing the superintendent grants permission. No interest is charged for the use of the money, although a phantom charge for interest is made to let them know that it costs money to use money of others.

The children's bank is the means of teaching the children thrift, and they are taught how to spend money judiciously.

Money is accumulated by the children in various ways. There has never been corporal punishment here. The merit and demerit system is used. The smaller children are given a gold star for each day they violate no rule in either their cottage or the kindergarten and low rooms in the school. For each gold star a penny is deposited in the bank to their credit. If they lose a star, they lose the credit of 14 cents for the week. Of each 14 cents for the week. Of each 14 cents deposited in the bank they are permitted to spend four cents the week.

Older boys and girls, who are employed at tasks outside of their regular assignments are paid a fixed hourly salary, and earn money that way.

All accounts in the children's bank are divided equally, between the checking and saving accounts. After a child has accumulated $10, a saving account in its name is opened with a bank in an outside city, so that the account can draw interest.

Either Twin Can Drive This Buick

One of these young ladies is driving an automobile for the first time in her life.

She is Daisy Hilton, one of the famous Texas Twins. She and her sister Violet have been joined together since birth at the base of the spine. Because Daisy is the right hand twin, she has always had to sit in the passenger's seat while Violet piloted the car.

But in a recent visit to California the Howard Automobile Company, Buick distributors, solved the problem. The Buick used by the Twins has double control, and is used to teach new drivers how to handle a car. Violet is seen giving Daisy her first lesson in driving at the wheels of the double control Buick. These charming young girls are high school graduates, talented musicians and accomplished entertainers.

Canadian Auto Shipments Are On Increase Since Reduction of Duty Car Officials in Detroit State

(By Universal Service)

DETROIT, Mich., May 1.—Shipments of Detroit-made automobiles into Canada have nearly doubled in the last two weeks as a result of the drop on the Canadian import duty on automobiles. Under the new revenue bill recently passed by the House of Commons, automobiles costing less than $1,200 are to be taxed at the rate of 20 per cent instead of 35 per cent as heretofore. Cars selling at more than $1,200 are to pay 12 1/2 per cent instead of 35 per cent. Canadian manufacturers of automobiles are allowed a draw back of 25 per cent of the duty paid for materials used in the construction of cars provided that fifty per cent of the cost of the finished product is produced in Canada. The British preferential of 15 per cent remains in effect.

This action by the House of Commons is expected to lend impetus to automobile buying in Canada and at the same time add to the pressure on Detroit plants for American made automobiles. The net result promises to effect a benefit to all concerned, despite the fact that several American manufacturers have curtailed activities in their Canadian branch factories. Anxiety of the moment is shown by some 3,600 automobile dealers in Canada, who according to C. J. Brawley, secretary of the Toronto Automobile Trade association are threatened with a loss of $5,000,000 unless some plan is evolved by the government whereby a rebate of import duty of cars bought and on hand, is made.

Henry Ford, king, sees the tariff reduction as an aid to all concerned.

"I believe in free trade everywhere," he said, "the tariff is a hindrance to trade. Free competition brings healthy business."

Ford's statement was made after visiting factories of the Ford Motor company of Canada.

"Those fellows over in our Canadian unit are going to manufacture more efficiently now," Ford declared. "They'll have to."

"It's going to be a better plant over there—better organization. That's another reason why it's a good thing for the manufacturer."

"They've been able to get a higher price in Canada, and naturally they've taken it. But on the other hand, lower prices mean more buyers, more business means growth for the manufacturer. Give me that plant at Ford City and I'll compete with the plant here at Highland Park any day. Our unit in Canada can buy as cheaply as we can here. We make every part of the car in the Canadian plant, and 95 per cent anyway of the raw material is supplied right in Canada. We get our steel from Algoma, Ontario, lumber—everything we need.

It was suggested that large-scale production make a difference, as many Canadian manufacturers believe they cannot compete with American manufacturers because the latter have advantages in mass production.

"I don't see that," said Ford. "What do you mean by mass production? I think we've got large scale production in our Canadian unit. There turning out six hundred cars a day. Here we are doing between 7,000 and 8,000 a day, but I don't think that's any advantage after a certain point."

Car Ownership Sign of Thrift Says J. P. Strom

"Car ownership is no longer a sign of wealth, but rather a sign of thrift," says J. P. Strom, well known automobile merchant.

"It is safe to say that most automobiles have paid for themselves. Do you know anybody who has owned a car and later tried to get along without one? Most men realize a greater earning power, a greater enjoyment of life, a saving of time and energy in getting about, as soon as they get accustomed to car ownership."

"To go without the car would in many cases actually result in decreased earning capacity, neither of which is any form of economy."

"The car dealer can and should do much to enable the car owner to get all the advantages of motoring without excessive cost. A good car plus local dealer responsibility is the best buy any man can make today, no matter how much or little his incomes may be."

The college parent-teacher association aims to bring about fuller cooperation between college authorities and college patrons.

HARTZ WINS ATLANTIC CITY AUTO CLASSIC

(By Universal Service)
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 1.—World's records fell by the wayside this afternoon as Harry Hartz, of Pomona, Calif., captured the 300-mile International Inaugural event of the Atlantic City speedway before a record attendance of 25,000 spectators.

Hartz negotiated the distance in two hours, fourteen minutes, fourteen and eighteen one hundredths seconds. Pete De Paolo, of Vineyard, N. J., American racing champion, was second with a time of two hours, fifteen minutes, twelve and one half seconds. Bob McDonough, of California, finished third in two hours, fifteen minutes, thirty eight and 59-100 seconds.

De Paolo's Duesenberg special developed engine trouble with seven laps of the classic remaining and after a heroic effort he was forced to drop from the great duel he had been engaged in with Hartz.

De Paolo returned after repairs and pluckily fought to regain an even race with Hartz, who thoroughly flushed with victory within his grasp, was exerting his Miller special to the utmost to beat out the Italian all-around speed king.

Hartz won, but De Paolo was not disgraced. The final laps of the battle between De Paolo and Hartz was one of the most sensational ever witnessed on a speedway. Up until the time when his engine balked, De Paolo had every thing to his advantage and then a lucky break favored the Californian who forged to the front never to be beaten.

The classic was in reality a brilliant and hard fought duel between Hartz, the victor; De Paolo, McDonaugh and Earl Devere, who was forced out of competition by engine trouble after passing the 175 mile mark.

Neither Hartz nor De Paolo was forced to halt once during the gruelling grind, which reduced the field from sixteen to four.

British Labor Unions Vote General Strike

breach of a general walkout; but there has been no official move in this direction.

King George, Premier Baldwin and all members of the cabinet remain in London over the weekend. The cabinet is in almost constant session, considering safety measures.

The greater part of the population—a populace more likely to riot Saturday afternoon to the races—spent the afternoon buying newspaper extras and in hanging over news tickers in hotels and elsewhere.

Everywhere a feeling of tense uncertainty is apparent. Newspaper and window bulletins contribute to the general excitement. The proclamation signed by the king, proclaiming a state of emergency was published in the official Gazette this morning.

In Hyde Park, where Britain permits anyone to air any opinion, there as a moving scene this afternoon. Twenty-five thousand unemployed joined a Communist demonstration. Speakers violently attacked the government and predicted revolution.

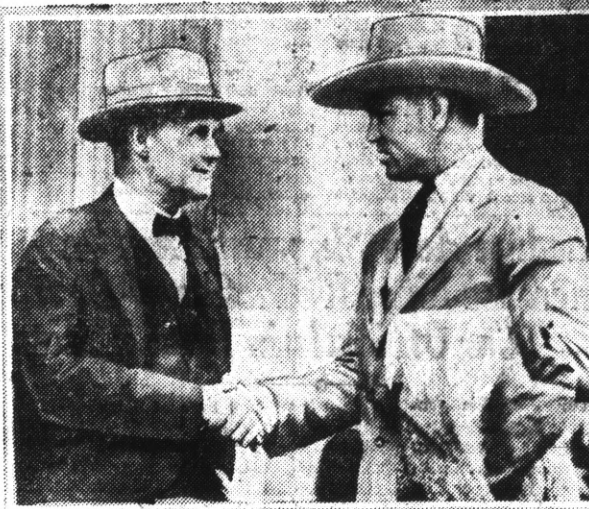

The May day communists paraded to a hall, watched by thousands of "bobbies", but it was much like any other procession at any other time so far as external signs went. The English policeman was not moved by the spectacle.

At both these meetings, and at the session here the call for a general strike was issued, workers sang the red flag. Some newspapers made much of this fact, but others pointed out that the song is the official hymn of trade unionism here, and has been sung many times before.

The staff of the trades union congress organized its strike with the precision of long preparation. Pickets tonight moved to appointed stations and were noted first at newspaper offices. The aim there was to insure the walkout and to prevent the entrance into the plants of a non-union staff.

A gallery of several hundred followed in the wake of the two players, considered the greatest feminine masculine widders on the Pacific Coast.

Miss Wright shot a consistent game, but poor work on the greens took away all the advantage gained by her long drives off the tee.

No Value Like This

Based on limited output, Hudson prices would have to be advanced many hundreds of dollars. That is why you nowhere find comparable quality, performance and reliability except in the costliest cars.

Built with all these Hudson advantages, the Brougham gives custom built smartness, beauty and quality. The body is all aluminum, and is hand made by famous craftsmen. Seats are deep, comfortable, well arranged, adjustable to any angle and with plenty of leg room.

The exclusive Super-Six principle has given more than ten years of mechanical supremacy. In everything that counts—performance, riding ease, smoothness and reliability higher price can buy no more. There can be no better proof that Hudson is the "World's Greatest Value" than what owners say for it, and that its sales leadership continues year after year, the outstanding success of motordom.

Hearing Restored

April 9, 1926.

During all my life I had suffered from Catarrh, more or less. A few months ago it became so bad that my eyes were head ached terribly and I could not hear well in either ear.

Although I tried many treatments and doctors I got no benefit whatever. I was told that I must have an operation for Adenoids and Tonsils.

Fortunately, however, instead, I came to the Fong Wan Herb Co. for treatment. After two weeks all my complaints were gone. I have nowhere else found remedies comparable with the Fong Wan Herbs.

Gall Bladder Troubles Gone!

To Whom It May Concern:

For over a year I had trouble in my gall bladder, pain on my right side, vomiting and a general rundown condition. On February 23rd of this year I had an attack of appendicitis, the pain of which was so severe that I could not sleep at night. I came to see the Chew & Chew herbals and after taking one dose of herbs I was greatly relieved. I continued to take the herbs for a few more weeks and I am all well now. March 15, 1926.

Labor and Wages Increase During Month of March

The April number of the California Labor Market Bulletin, issued by the State Labor Commissioner, Walter C. Mathewson, shows a slight increase in employment and wages in the month of March, 1926, compared with the preceding month.

The bulletin is based upon reports received from 710 large California establishments which employed 137,185 wage-earners in March, 1926, compared with 136,528 workers employed by these establishments in February, 1926. This represents an increase of about one per cent over the number employed last month. The total weekly payroll of these 710 establishments increased from $3,418,529 in February, 1926, to $3,479,551, or 2 per cent. Similarly the average weekly wages of the workers in these 710 establishments increased from $24.85 in February to $24.92 in March, an increase of 13 per cent.

The largest increases in employment are shown in the manufacture of agricultural implements, wood products, including sawmill and logging operations, stone and clay products, ice manufactures, mineral oil refining, millinery and confectionery and ice cream.

Among the industries showing decreases in employment in March compared with February are the following: Brass, bronze and copper products, leather and rubber goods, textiles, women's clothing, and the canning and packing of fish.

According to Dr. Louis Bloch, statistician for the Labor Commission, employment conditions in April will show a decided improvement over those in March, 1926. This prediction is made upon available statistical data on fluctuation of employment in the office of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

THREE WILL DIE IN GAS CHAMBER IN CARSON CITY

(By Universal Service)

CARSON CITY, Nev., May 1.—Nevada's lethal gas chambers at the State penitentiary here is being made ready to receive and snuff out the lives of three men—convicted murderers.

The trio—Stanko Jukich 28, John Randolph 56, and Gaudaloupe Acosta, 53, will die together. The executions are scheduled for the week of May 16.

The death chamber is a one-room building located in the prison yard. It was first used two years ago, when an aged Chinaman, the first murderer to die by lethal gas in the United States, paid the supreme penalty for his crime.

Prison officials, newspapermen and relatives—if the wish—may watch the three men die through an airtight glass window.

Of the three men Randolph's trial attracted the most attention. Randolph, crazed with moonshine liquor and "dope" attacked and beat his 72-year-old mother when she refused him money to continue his debauch. He was arrested, charged with assault. When his mother died two days later the charge was changed to murder.

Jukich was convicted of killing his fifteen-year-old sweetheart, Jennie Madek at Ruth, Nevada. Jukich came from Serbia to marry Jennie. Her parents had agreed in the "old country" that their daughter should marry Jukich when she reached 16.

The girl decided that she did not care for Jukich and refused to marry him. Jukich shot and killed her.

Guadaloupe Acosta, a Mexican, will die for the murder of a deputy sheriff at Elko, Acosta, according to the evidence, shot and killed the officer when the latter attempted to arrest him. Acosta declared he did not know the man was an officer.

Attorneys representing the three condemned men have taken their respective cases to the higher courts only to have the verdict of the jury and the lower courts reaffirmed.

Each man is bearing up in the hope that executive clemency will save him from the death chamber. On the morning of the day the trio will be executed, they will have their hands tied behind them and their legs strapped to straight iron bars. They will be led across the prison yard to the gas chambers and inside will be strapped to heavy stationary chairs.

Then—with a sizzling sound of death, the gas will rush forth from a pipe and asphyxiate them. The State will then have exacted its penalty.

Eagle Creamery To Open New Store Monday Morning

(By Universal Service)

The former location of the Purity Creamery company has been completely remodeled for the Eagle Creamery which will open its new store at 718 Macdonald avenue Monday morning. J. B. Silveria, president, and J. C. Wasley vice-president of the company, announce that the most modern equipment has been installed in the new location for the benefit of the patrons of the creamery.

All equipment was made to order especially for the Eagle Creamery and the interior has been completely remodeled. A marble soda fountain and cushioned booths have been installed for the accommodation of the patrons.

The office of the creamery will be located in the rear of the new store and will be moved from the former location, 267 Fifth street, where it has been located since its organization thirteen years ago. The needs for a more central location is responsible for the move.

A new refrigeration plant which manufactures ice cream without the use of ammonia or ice has been installed by the company and sanitation has been stressed in all of the equipment secured and installed.

All kinds of dairy products, including milk, cream, butter, eggs and cheese will be handled by the creamery at all parts of the city. The soda fountain is equipped to accommodate the patrons' tastes.

Thirteen years ago, the Eagle Creamery was started by J. B. Silveria and has expanded with each year of business until it has grown to be one of the largest organizations of its kind in the Eastbay region. The creamery was incorporated last October with the employees as stockholders and J. C. Wasley became vice-president. The company now has twenty-three employees.

Sedative Caused Death of Babies Doctor Declares

(By Universal Service)

NEW YORK, May 1.—Paraldehyde administered as a sedative, and not whiskey, probably caused the deaths of two babies in Brooklyn Maternity hospital last Thursday.

This is the report which will be made today by District Attorney Dodd, in Brooklyn, by Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, chief toxicologist of New York, who has completed and analysis of organs removed from the children's bodies.

He found a large quantity of paraldehyde, a poison produced either by oxidation of alcohol or by administration of paraldehyde, commonly used as a sedative.

ASKS GUARDIANSHIP

FARM RELIEF BILL WORRIES POLITICIANS

(By Fraser Edwards)

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Farm relief legislation contains more political dynamite than any measure congress has tackled and administration leaders are frankly fearful that the Democrats will use it to blow the Republican party out of control of the next congress.

Even if the Republicans retain nominal control of the next house and Senate, leaders see a possibility of the balance of power falling into the hands of a group of radicals that may be swept into both bodies by the discontented farm elements.

This group could join with the Democrats, as it did in the last congress, and defeat almost any measure that the administration sent to congress. It would endanger the entire administration program that will be left undone when this session adjourns, next month.

But even the most pessimistic republicans are able to draw some satisfaction from the dark picture they paint. They believe that it might be a blessing in disguise for the Democrats to obtain full control of congress.

With the executive and legislative branches of the government a Loggish, construction legislation would come to a full stop. It was pointed out, this would give the Republican an added argument to appeal to the country for the re-election of President Coolidge in 1926 or another republican, in the event of President declined to run, and a republican congress to support the president.

The trouble with farm relief is that nobody is satisfied with anything that has been offered. If a proposal satisfies the farmers, the administration turns thumbs down on it and vice versa.

Just when the farmer groups and the administration seemed to be getting together on the Capper-Tincher-Jardine bill, which is reported to have the approval of the President, San H. Thompson, President of the American farm bureau federation, came along and kicked over the hay cart.

At the same time, the staunchest administration men in both house and senate began breathing fire against the President for giving his tacit approval to a measure that smacks of subsidy for the bill provides for a $100,000,000 revolving fund to be loaned to cooperative marketing associations.

Representatives of the "dirt farmers" regard the Capper-Tincher bill as one of the shiniest gold bricks that has yet been offered to them. They contend that it utterly fails to touch the problem of disposing of surplus crops.

With adjournment scheduled to take place some time between May 18 and June 1, and the split of all factions growing wider every day, there is a strong possibility of all farm relief legislation failing at this session, despite the fervent promises of administration leaders.

The only ones deriving any satisfaction from the situation seem to be the Democrats. As they sit on the side-lines and watch the Republican family quarrel, their hopes of controlling the next congress rise.

Democrats privately admit that they see little hope of making substantial gains in seats from the industrial centers, which are generally prosperous.

Their real chance they believe lies in the farming regions where depression has left the farmers angry with the administration for failing to remedy the situation with legislation.

May Day in Italy Celebrated Quietly

By JOHN T. BURKE
(By Universal Service)

SPECIAL Cable to Universal Service ROME, May 1.—With Britain in the grip of an impending general strike and other nations suffering from labor unrest, the whole of Italy celebrated May day by working.

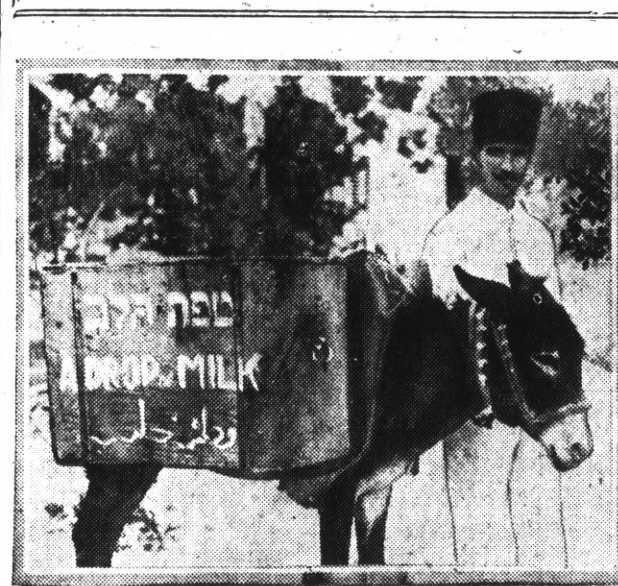

Today also was marked by the presentation of a new law creating the post of minister of corporations, which will have the power to control every human activity in the kingdom and colonies.

This minister will be enabled to direct banks, commerce, industries, labor unions and professions, and will lead a drive for 100-per cent production. The passage and enforcement of this law will mark the most stupendous step yet taken by the duce.

The chamber today passed the colonies and interior budgets, and appropriations for all other departments are certain of approval.

Supreme Court Orders Return Of Stock Cash

By a ruling handed down by the state supreme court yesterday, the long litigation between the stockholders and the president of the San Francisco Richmond Ferry company ended and the stockholders will receive funds invested in the enterprise.

The supreme court held that the railroad commission has jurisdiction to dissolve public utilities which have failed to complete the financing under its orders. M. Emanuel, president of the company, appealed the decision of the State Railroad commission which ordered the impounded funds of the company returned to the stockholders. The amount involved totals $60,000 of which amount $50,000 were subscribed by Richmond stockholders.

The company was organized to operate an automobile ferry between San Francisco and the Inner harbor of Richmond. The company failed to complete financing and after a long wait a group of stockholders appealed to the commission for a return of the money invested. The stockholders were headed by O. R. Ludwig of Richmond and were represented by Delancy Smith of San Francisco.

Canadian Workers On Strike for Five Day Working Week

(By Universal Service)

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 1.—Fifteen hundred skilled Vancouver construction workers are idle today. The issue is a five-day week. Union carpenters, who claim the support of the bricklayers and floor layers, demand that Saturday be eliminated from the working schedule, thus reducing the week's labor to five eight-hour days as compared with the present 44-hour week.

Employing contractors replying to the working men's ultimatum, have posted notices at all larger construction jobs, warning men that failure to appear for work Monday will mean immediate discharge.

APPEAL FILED IN MCCORMICK TRUST SUIT

(By Universal Service)

CHICAGO, May 1.—An appeal was filed in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals here today against the ruling of Federal Judge Robert C. Baltzell, of Indianapolis, in the $8,000,000 McCormick trust fund suit.

The appeal was filed by Harold E. McCormick as the "next friend" of Anita Oser, his granddaughter. The suit was brought against Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, divorced wife of Harold. The suit sets forth that $8,017,000 in dividends declared by the Standard Oil company of Indiana should be placed in the trust fund as part of the principal of the trust created for the children of the McCormicks.

Mrs. McCormick holds, however, that the dividends are income and that they should not be passed on to the children.

The children are Fowler and Muriel McCormick and Mrs. Mathilde McCormick Oser. Anita Oser, the daughter of the latter also is to receive a part of the trust fund. Judge Baltzell ruled that he had no jurisdiction in the case.
